Man charged with reckless homicide

Suspect was driving under the influence when he crashed, prosecutors say

By Scott Kelly

Kevin W. Clark of Granite City was charged Tuesday with reckless homicide in the Sept. 9 death of Dawn Readhead, and prosecutors say drugs played a role.

According to St. Clair County prosecutors, Clark, of the 2500 block of Namecki, was under the influence of alcohol and marijuana while driving his 1982 Datsun pick-up north on Illinois 203, Readhead, 23, also of the 2500 block of Namecki, was his passenger. According to Madison police reports, at approximately 1 a.m. Clark ran a red light at the Illinois 203-Ohio intersection in Madison near the entrance of Gateway International Raceway and collided with a tractor trailer driven by William Bosse. Holiday Harvest draws a large crowd

By Alene Hill
Staff writer

Good weather and plenty of activities attracted a large crowd to the 13th annual Holiday Harvest, held Saturday and Sunday at Relleke Farms.

"Our Saturday crowd was smaller because it looked like it was going to rain," said Carol Relleke, who owns the farm with her husband, John. "But on Sunday, we had 10 acres of parked cars and had to open another lot. That's the first time we've had to do that in years."

The annual event is sponsored by the Illinois Farm Bureau and radio station WIL. Proceeds go to needy children.

"We raised more than $20,000 in two days last year," Relleke said. "We don't know yet what we collected, but I hope to at least match last year's amount."

Activities, which will be offered throughout October, included food booths, hay rides, buggy rides, face painting, crafts, straw tunnels, a giant straw slide, pony and camel rides, and a haunted barn operated by the Granite City High School (See HARVEST, Page 6A)

A jury has awarded $650,000 in damages to the estate of a 6-year-old boy who drowned in 1997 in a Collinsville hotel swimming pool. "It's hard for me every day to wake up and not have him," the boy's mother, Shawna D. Thomas, said.

"There's not a day I don't think about him." Thomas, 30, of East St. Louis filed suit as administrator for the estate of her son, Ronald Michael Burris Jr. He drowned July 20, 1997, at the Travelodge, 475 N. Bluff Road.

A Madison County Circuit Court jury of four men and eight women took slightly more than an hour Tuesday to arrive at the award. The verdict was far less than the $3 million sought by Thomas' attorney, Jim Donovan, and a bit more than the $200,000 to $300,000 suggested by defense attorney Mark Bauman, who represented two Travelodge parent companies and corporation president Arvind "Andy" Patel.

The jury awarded damages to Burris' estate, made up of his

Think about spoiling kids before doing it

Trying to figure out if you're spoiling your child may be one of the hardest parts of parenting.

Maybe you've had days when even a sidelong glance from a checkout clerk can have you wheeling away a load of doubts along with your groceries and kids.

Focusing on the essentials can help you clear up the confusion to those uncertainties. Before the next situation comes up, ask yourself what you think about the following questions and answers.

But remember, when it comes to your own kids, it's your opinion about what spoiling really is that matters most.

Does being given toys, snacks and special treats spoil a child?

Not necessarily. In general, the act of giving a child something special because you know he likes it (and because you enjoy giving it to him) won't result in his abruptly shrieking with an air of waving his fists in the air and demanding, "More, more, more!" In fact, being given something special is one way kids learn about generosity.

However, when you give your child something just to avoid a scene, or to alleviate a parental guilt attack (or simply to buy a few moments of quiet), you might want to reconsider.

Every parent does this once in a while, of course. But doing so on a regular basis can turn your kid into something no parent wants: an effective little shakedown artist.

In short, it's not always what, when or how much you give your child that causes spoiling. It's why.

Will it spoil a child if you change your mind about something you've said "no" to?

If you realize you've somehow got locked into an automatic "no" mode, if you rethink a situation and come to the conclusion that your child's request is reasonable after all, if your child raises legitimate point (rather than raising the roof), an occasional about-face on your part won't hurt. Actually, it's useful for a child to know that his plausible, polite requests will be listened to.

Do watch for signs warning: "Spoiling lies ahead."

Here are a few red flags:

Are you changing your mind against your better judgment?

Are you saying yes when you know in your heart you should be saying no?

Truism: If you believe something's wrong for your child, it probably is. Stick to what you've said.

Changing your mind from time to time won't spoil your child. But caving in can.

Isn't spoiling just a way of saying, "I love you?"

There is a difference between loving and spoiling, but sometimes, it's hard to figure out. What parent hasn't suddenly discovered that a whiny, demanding and seemingly "spoiled" child is, in truth, running a fever?

A child who's frightened, upset or certainly uses all the comfort and concern a parent can muster. That's loving, not spoiling.

And it's loving, not spoiling, at any time to show affection, to respond to needs, to spend time with your child and to do things she enjoys.

Loving, rather than spoiling, a child also means making difficult decisions.

It means standing firm when you set limits.

It means helping your child feel cared for simply because you won't let him do things you believe are unreasonable, unkind or unsafe.

That's not always easy, of course. Not spoiling a child takes time and attention. Often, those things that make parenting so difficult—setting and sticking to limits, also show the most love.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Fitzgerald has questions

TO THE EDITOR:
I am responding to those who believe Peter Fitzgerald, the Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate, refuses to debate Sen. Carol Moseley-Braun. This could not be further from the truth.

Fitzgerald is looking forward to debating Braun. He has announced this repeatedly in public.

Fitzgerald and Braun have agreed to debate twice on TV during October. The first debate was scheduled for Oct. 4.

Peter Fitzgerald wants to ask Sen. Braun why she voted against repealing the marriage tax penalty on married couples who earn under $100,000. He also wants to ask the Senator why she voted last year to strip middle class tax cuts out of the balanced budget agreement.

Carol Moseley-Braun has a lot of explaining to do to the middle-class people of downstate Illinois as to why she rarely visits here. I don't think Senator Braun understands the concerns of an average family.

It's time for the middle class to give themselves a gift — retire Carol Moseley-Braun and elect Peter Fitzgerald our next Senator form the great state of Illinois.

JUDY HOLMES

Current senator doesn't understand needs of families

TO THE EDITOR:
This summer, Sen. Carol Moseley-Braun quietly dealt a blow to all those people who have chosen to enter the sanctity of marriage.

Braun voted against an amendment that would have provided money to eliminate the marriage tax penalty. As many people know, married couples who earn similar salaries pay more taxes than if they would file separately.

There is absolutely no excuse to support a policy that discriminates against marriage. Men and women should not be forced to not get married simply because they cannot afford the tax hit.

Perhaps Moseley-Braun, who is single, does not understand the profound effect this added tax has on our families. Maybe she has been too busy enjoying the perks of Washington, D.C., so she has forgotten about the middle class who work hard to make a living, pay taxes and still make time to raise a family.

Paramedics deserve thanks

TO THE EDITOR:
This is a tribute to Craig Sykes, Scott Strack, Kevin Kelly and Kenny Prazma. It is difficult to begin to express in words how much it meant to me when these young men answered our 911 call at 2 a.m. Sept. 12. I know that they saved my life, and I will always feel that with God's help, they were angels of mercy.

Thank you so much for such wonderful feeling to know we have such capable paramedics in Granite City. I wanted the public to know much I appreciated their genuine caring.

Clinton should stay in office

TO THE EDITOR:
I rarely agree with Bill Clinton's politics. I didn't vote for him in 1992 or 1996. That doesn't mean I can overthrow him because of our political differences.

Unless the Senate agrees that the Constitution (our most basic social contract) is in grave danger, Clinton should remain in office. He was constitutionally elected twice. He seems competent to operate the levers of government.

The drumbeat for impeachment during the Summer of 1998 is getting as much attention as the same drumbeat received about 130 years ago. Andrew Johnson was not in favor of vigorously enforcing the Reconstruction Acts passed by Congress.

The decisions he made about enforcing those laws infuriated his political opponents. The president reversed the decisions of several generals in command of southern reconstruction districts. He didn't like the way they enforced the acts.

Congress had passed a law which prohibited the president from firing Senate-approved executive officers. The president fired Secretary of War Stanton because of political differences with the Secretary.

Johnson's political opponents in the Congress began to act. By 1868, they had approved a bill of impeachment and sent it for a Senate trial.

Andrew Johnson had been Lincoln's vice president. In those days, when the president died and the vice president became president, no new vice president was appointed. If Johnson were removed, the president pro tem of the Senate, Benjamin F. Wade, would have become president.

That man's political philosophy, which included soft money and high tariffs, had many opponents. Johnson defenders reminded Senate colleagues that there would be a political shift with a new man in the White House and they may not like the changes. Johnson survived the Senate trial and served out his term.

The Johnson case dealt with the freshly defeated southern states. Johnson's political opponents wished to replace his political agenda with their own. They came dangerously close to making the U.S. more European in our political style.

Europe has a long history of replacing the executive head of government using extra-legal means.

The United States president is president for a constitutionally specified period. Nothing is supposed to change that unless the republic itself is in danger. When we elect a president, we elect him because we believe he has the capability to safely operate the levers of government and the military in our name. It should be hard to undo that vote through impeachment.

Nixon seemed at the time to threaten liberty itself and was allowed to resign. Johnson threatened Congressional political authority during the reconstruction of the south but survived. Clinton's outcome is unclear. In the constitution there are four items listed as reasons to impeach: treason, bribery, high crimes and misdemeanors.

Clinton may have perjured himself in the Paula Jones case. Should that be enough to change the outcome of two elections?

Without the Nixon impeachment precedent, impeachment of Bill Clinton would seem less probable to his opponents. The more often we witness impeachment proceedings, the easier it gets for the Senate to remove a president for the benefit of changing the executive branch's political direction.

Does anyone believe that it was the intent of the Founding Fathers for Congress to use impeachment for political purposes? Perhaps the intent was to give Congress a method of removing a president who was betraying his country.

Bill Clinton's political legacy, when separated from his lucky economic fortunes, will not shine from the pages of future elementary school history text books.

His bland offerings as president will be as well remembered as the offerings of most of the other presidents few have heard of. Why create yet another deep political crisis when Jan. 20, 2001, is not that far away?

Campaign strategies vary

TO THE EDITOR:
It is interesting that Democrat, lawyer and local congressional candidate challenger Rick Verlicchio would try to embarrass Rep. John Shimkus with a "Just come home, John Shimkus" radio advertisement. It was just a feeble effort to impact the well-known honesty and integrity of one popular congressman.

Rick, why not try calling for ethics and integrity as key issues in your radio announcements? The reason is obvious.

The differences in campaigning strategy between the two parties are clearly evident. Bill Price made a solid commitment to the citizens when he said "he will continue to make ethics and integrity an issue in the November election."

The National Republican Party, the Democratic Party can no longer lay claim to be a representative of the ordinary citizen who is mostly lawyer representatives exploit the political system for personal gain.

Signs a real bother around town

I am calling about the yard sale sign dilemma. What's up with all the political signs? If you have been in Collinsville lately and drove down Main Street to 157 there are tons of political signs that are a lot bigger than the yard sale signs. I do get tired of seeing them. A suggestion would be to have residents pay a deposit for a yard sale sign and return the sign for a refund. I don't believe in making people pay, you already have to pay for a permit and I don't think the city should make money off of peoples yard sales.

I am calling about Columbia Middle School Softball. How can a team start the same player every game until the regionals and then start a teacher's kid in the same position that she has not played all year?

Young gr's report incidents to police

By Steve Whitworth
and Sanford J. Schmidt
Staff writers

Three incidents in which a man exposed himself to young girls were under investigation Tuesday to determine if the same man was involved. The three incidents occurred Monday, but Edwardsville Director of Police Bennett Dickmann said it remained unclear if the same man was involved in all of them. Dickmann said there apparently was no attempt to molest or abduct any of the girls. "It was just blatant exposure without any indication of a threat," he said. The first incident was reported about 2:30 p.m. Monday at Edwardsville Middle School, 145 West St.,

EDWARDSVILLE

Dickmann said. A white man of undetermined age, but whom Dickmann said was "well beyond school age," appeared in the doorway of a sixth-grade girls' locker room as about a dozen girls were dressing after a physical education class. "He exposed himself to numerous female students," Dickmann said the man then closed the door to the locker room and ran away. The locker room is not far from an outside door at the school, Dickmann said. He said investigators were interviewing the girls who saw the incident.

About 5 p.m. Monday, two teen girls reported that a man exposed himself to them in the 200 block of North Kansas Street. The girls told police that as they were walking, the man came from between houses and dropped his trousers. The girls ran to nearby Columbus School and reported the incident to a teacher, who called police. A short time later, an Edwardsville police officer went to The Store, 701 Hillsboro Ave., to see whether anyone matching the description of the man in the incident on North Kansas Street might be in the area. While the officer was at the store, a 14-year-old girl reported a man had exposed himself to her a short time earlier on Hillsboro near Columbia Avenue, about three blocks from North Kansas. The girl said a man fitting the general description of the man in the North Kansas incident had dropped his trousers while he was standing in a yard and she ran to the Store.

The description of the man in the second and third incidents was a white male wearing a blue shirt and dark trousers. The girls who saw the incident at the middle school gave a "similar" description, Dickmann said.

No vehicle was observed during any of the incidents, police said.

Dickmann said police had met extensively with Principal John Dean at the middle school to discuss the incident.

It also remained unclear whether Monday's incidents might be connected to an incident that occurred Sept. 25 at Behme's Market in Holiday Shores, 7180 St. James Road.

In that case, a man entered the store and exposed himself while standing near a display of vacuum cleaners, according to a report from the Madison County Sheriff's Department.

The license plate on the vehicle driven by the man was traced to a deceased Bunker Hill woman, the report said. It said the person last reported seen driving the vehicle was the suspect in the Behme's Market incident and recently had been arrested in Alton on a similar charge.

Thieves hit McGwire collection

By Paul A. Brinkmann
Staff writer

Jeffrey Braden of Alton liked to brag to friends and neighbors about his Mark McGwire rookie baseball cards. Now he is wondering which of those people may have entered his home and stolen the three cards and two Cardinal ticket stubs from the first baseman's record-setting game. "I am devastated," Braden said, "I was trying to get something for my kids for the future." Burglars ransacked Braden's home last Wednesday night while he was at a friend's house in Mitchell. It was the second reported local theft of McGwire memorabilia in two months. Braden returned at 3:30 a.m. Thursday to find his front door open, his 1-year-old German Shepherd standing on the front porch and many valuable items missing.

"They tore my place apart," Braden said. "There were papers all over the floor. They were looking for something, probably the cards. They left other things behind." The cards were Donruss brands — a 1985 Olympic team card and 1986 and 1987 rookie cards. Not considered as valuable as Topps cards, the Donruss cards still may command a price of several hundred dollars because of McGwire's fame. Also stolen were two Cardinals ticket stubs from the team's last game this year, during which McGwire hit his record-setting 69th and 70th home runs, and collections of antique coins and knives. Braden said the theft is particularly disheartening given the good-natured spirit of the McGwire-Sammy Sosa saga. "You have people giving the balls back to McGwire, and then you have these crooks running around stealing stuff," Braden said. "I don't think these crooks care about Mark McGwire, at all. They are just in it for the money." He is embarrassed that he left his front door unlocked the night of the theft. He said he had never experienced a problem in his neighborhood. Similar cards of the Topps brand were stolen Aug. 21 from The Card Pile sports shop in Wood River. Sumair A. Sattar, 21, of the 7200 block of Stutz Lane in Bethalto, was charged in that theft. Madison County Circuit Judge Lawrence J. Keshner sentenced Sattar to 62 days in jail and 62 days of community service, partly because McGwire had just hit his record-breaking 62nd home run of the season at the time of the sentencing. Alton police Lt. James R. Hessel said the department has no leads in Braden's case. Braden said he does not have insurance and has no way to recover the value of the stolen items.

Group aiming for involvement, reform

With the November elections less than 60 days away, the Illinois Campaign for Political Reform is gearing up to fully inform and engage voters about the issue of campaign finance reform. ICPR leaders recently unveiled their fall strategy to increase public awareness of the issue and inform voters about their role in taking big money out of state politics. "We launched our efforts to promote public understanding about the impact of campaign finance practices on policy making last spring," said Cynthia Lanary, Director of ICPR. "Our ongoing goal is to get the public more involved in government, so their voice is heard above the special interests."

Leading ICPR's fall campaign is "Ad Watch," a campaign that will analyze false or misleading information found in particular campaign ads. The format is designed to make candidates more accountable and hold campaigns to honest and fair standards. "Ad Watch will serve as an instrumental tool in deterring deceptive campaign practices and assessing whether or not candidates are telling the truth," said Gordon Walck, Coordinator for ICPR's Better Campaigns Project. ICPR's watchdogging efforts will put pressure on campaigns to provide documentation for their claims. Ad Watch also will aid journalists in reporting about inaccuracies or falsehoods, as well as sensitize voters to easily search the Internet for campaign ads. The technological centerpiece to Ad Watch is the newly revised ICPR Web site (www.icpr.org) that enables anyone with Internet access to easily search the campaign contribution records of candidates for governor, secretary of state and other major races.

Launched last February and organized in conjunction with the Center for Responsive Politics in Washington, the Web site is the first of its kind in Illinois and now includes information updated through the end of June 1998. The Sunshine Project of the University of Illinois at Springfield's Institute for Public Affairs and ICPR are conducting a survey of all candidates for statewide and legislative offices to chart their views on and support for current reform proposals. Concurrently, the Coalition for Consumer Rights will join ICPR in co-sponsoring a statewide poll that will probe citizen perceptions of campaign finance practices. "The campaign finance issue is particularly compelling as we approach the November elections. It is imperative that voters know the extent to which certain candidates will be driven by campaign contributions as they carry out public business," said Kent Redfield, Director of the Sunshine Project. ICPR has been working with broadcasters across the state to increase the amount of radio and television airtime made available to gubernatorial and U.S. Senate candidates. The free airtime format developed by the Illinois Broadcasters Association will consist of one-minute questions concerning key issues facing state voters this fall. The segments will then be played by broadcast stations throughout the state. ICPR is encouraging all candidates to take advantage of this free opportunity to have voters hear their views. Other key efforts during ICPR's aggressive public outreach campaign include door-to-door canvassing, along with members from the Illinois Public Interest Research Group and a series of public meetings aimed at increasing understanding and scrutiny of money in Illinois politics. The Illinois Campaign for Political Reform is funded by the Joyce Foundation. The group is chaired by former U.S. Senator Paul Simon. For more information, call (312) 621-9050.

Haunted house — The Charles Melvin Price Support Center Teen Club will host the eight annual Halloween haunted house, which will be open to the public from 6-10 p.m. Oct. 23, Oct. 24 and Oct. 30. The haunted house is in Building 108 on third street at the center. The cost is $2 for children, $3 for adults. Proceeds will go toward teen programs. For more information, please call 452-4552.

Woman nabbed for allegedly stealing car, giving police false information

By Scott Kelly
Staff writer

A Granite City woman faces felony obstruction charges for allegedly stealing a car and lying to police. Christine E. Evans, 30, of the 2800 block of Harding, was arrested Sunday morning after a three-car accident on the 2100 block of Grand. When officers arrived at the accident, they observed Evans, allegedly intoxicated, standing next to a Chevy Cavalier. She told police a man had driven the car from the Quik Trip at 2149 Madison Ave. The same car had just been reported stolen from the Quik Trip. When the accident happened, Evans told police, the man left the scene, and she moved to the driver's seat. However, residents who saw the accident say they observed no man leaving the accident and saw Evans in the driver's seat backing into the other cars. The owner of the Chevy later identified both his car and Evans to police. After police arrested her for auto theft, among other charges, Evans allegedly gave an incorrect name to police. The Madison County State's Attorney's office charged Evans Monday with obstruction of justice, a class four felony. Bail was set at $15,000.

Monitoring shows decrease in pollutants

Air quality in Illinois was healthy on 96.4 percent of the days in 1997, according to the 1997 Annual Air Quality Report recently issued by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency.

There were six days of unhealthy air quality statewide in 1997, compared to six in 1996 and eight in 1995. Five of those occurrences (two in the Chicago area, two in the Metro East and one in Jersey County) were due to ozone, a respiratory irritant found in smog; the other occurrence was due to particulate matter (airborne dust), a respiratory irritant, in the Metro East.

The Illinois EPA maintains more than 200 monitors statewide that track levels of six pollutants with federal health-based standards (called criteria pollutants), as well as other pollutants and compounds. Over the past decade, the trends also have been favorable. Air monitoring data collected from 1988-97 show declining levels of all criteria pollutants:

- Ozone levels are down 23 percent

- Particulate matter concentrations are down 33 percent.
- Carbon monoxide levels are down 48 percent.
- Sulfur dioxide concentrations are down 11 percent.
- Nitrogen dioxide levels are down 11 percent.
- Lead concentrations are down 55 percent.

Two Illinois areas, however, do not meet the minimum health-based standards for ozone: the Chicago metropolitan area and the Metro East. More reduction in pollution-causing emissions are necessary before these areas improve in air quality.

"We are encouraged by the achievements we have made in improving air quality, but major challenges still exist, especially with ground-level ozone," said IEPA Director Mary A. Gade. "The agency will continue to look at new ways to reduce this air pollutant and to educate Illinois citizens about what they can do to help in the solution.

More than half the emissions that cause smog come from cars and other gasoline-powered engines and common household products. That's why it's important that everyone makes an effort to help maintain good air quality and to help improve problem areas.

Gade said that everyone can help improve air quality by taking simple actions:

- Try to limit driving by carpooling, taking public transportation or combining several short trips into one.
- Keep your car well-tuned.
- Use water-based paints and varnishes instead of oil-based.
- Limit the use of household products that release vapors or cause fumes.
- Conserve energy in your home to help reduce needs from power plants.

County Health Department offering flu shots

The Madison County Health Department will administer flu shots and pneumococcal vaccines on a walk-in basis at its headquarters, 2119 Troy Rd. in Edwardsville, from October through mid-December.

Clinic hours are 2 to 5:30 p.m. Mondays, 9 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 4:30 p.m. Tuesdays and 1 to 4:30 p.m. Wednesdays. All adults are eligible to receive flu shots; seniors aged 65 and over are also eligible for the pneumococcal vaccine. Influenza is a serious disease, and getting vaccinated for it is important, said Don Brannon, Madison County Health Department administrator. "This is especially true for people with diabetes," Brannon said. "A flu shot can substantially reduce the risk of death from complications of flu for people with diabetes."

Statistics from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention indicate deaths among people with diabetes increases 5-15 percent during flu epidemics, and people with diabetes are about three times more likely to die from complications of the flu and pneumonia. Recent statistics indicate that only 40 percent of adults with diabetes were immunized against flu, and fewer than 1 in 5 were immunized against pneumococcal disease. In 1994, approximately 45,023 adults in Illinois were diagnosed with diabetes.

"The good news is that people with diabetes can greatly decrease their chance of getting the flu by simply getting a flu shot," said Debra M. Tscheschlok, personal health services manager for the department.

SIUE building fitness center

Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville has broken ground on a 4,100-square-foot addition to the Student Fitness Center, a project that will more than double the existing weight-training room of the center and allow for a room that will be dedicated to free weights and will add substantially to the amount of cardiovascular equipment available to students, faculty and staff.

"More than 500 people are using the Student Fitness Center each day," SIUE Campus Recreation Director Michael J. Ostrander said. "With the addition of a second residence hall on campus, we're preparing for an even greater number of students who want to make use of the facility."

Ostrander said that 38 percent of activities in the Student Fitness Center occur in the existing weight-training room, which offers stair machines, bicycles, treadmills, weight machines and free weights.

Officials hope to complete construction by April.

JJK Center taking off

The groundbreaking ceremony for the Jackie Joyner-Kersey Youth Center was to take place Wednesday at the construction site on 25th Street across from Jones/Hall Park.

If all goes as planned, the first phase of the center is set to open next August, said Lincoln Ellis, executive director of the Jackie Joyner-Kersey Youth Center Foundation.

The center will provide 14,000 area children with opportunities in athletics, education, employment and cultural enrichment.

The foundation has raised $8.4 million in cash and pledges, including $1 million each from Anheuser-Busch, Monsanto and the state of Illinois.

The foundation's goal is to raise $12.5 million for a permanent endowment fund to pay for operating costs and future expansion. The first phase will include a $6 million main facility with a game room, basketball courts, wellness and fitness center, a dance studio, an arts-and-crafts room, a media center, locker rooms, a library, a computer resource center, a science lab and administrative offices.

Police seek information on man wanted for sexual assault

The O'Fallon Police Department is requesting assistance in obtaining information about Gary Dean Davis.

Davis has been charged by the Collinsville Police Department with 11 counts of aggravated criminal sexual assault to child through the Madison County State's Attorney's office. Davis is being held in Madison County Jail in lieu of a $1.5 million bond.

Collinsville police detectives have developed leads that Davis resided at 714 North Cherry St., Apt. 4, in O'Fallon from late 1990 until around Christmas 1992. O'Fallon Police Detective Jim Cavins said Thursday. During this time, Davis was a Senior leader with Boy Scout Troop 40, Cavins said.

O'Fallon and Collinsville police detectives believe that these leads will uncover more victims, and it is believed that while Davis was in the O'Fallon, he came into contact with several children.

Police listed other known Davis' addresses as: 310 North Main, Lot 11, Shiloh; 109 South High, Lot 12, Shiloh; and 10211 Felder Rd., Lebanon.

Anyone having information about Davis or his activities are being asked to contact Cavins at 624-4537.

Holbrook questions FAA decision on Lambert Airport expansion

State Rep. Thomas Holbrook, D-Belleville, says the W-1W expansion is still not in the best interest of a viable air system for the St. Louis metropolitan area.

The St. Louis Airport Authority announced Wednesday that the FAA has approved plans for the W-1W expansion of Lambert-St. Louis International Airport. The project will cost $2.6 billion.

"It is reprehensible that the FAA has not given consideration to using MidAmerica Airport," said Holbrook. "We will review the decision, weigh our options and take action. MidAmerica must be included in any current and future plans concerning all types of air transportation in the bi-state region."

Greg Guenther of Belleville has been elected to the corn board of the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA), a national organization representing the interests of corn growers nationwide. The 15-member corn board meets four times a year.

In his first year as corn board member, Guenther will apply his leadership skills to congressional passage of Fast Track negotiating authority, said NCGA director of communications Kevin Aandahl.

THE LAW AND YOU

By RICK REED
Attorney At Law

If a person steps into a pothole in a privately owned parking lot and sustains a substantial injury, is the owner of the parking lot liable for the injury? The answer partially depends upon the prior notice which the owner had as to the existence of the potholes.

In one recent case, a plaintiff brought an action against the owner of a parking lot for injuries he sustained on its property when he stepped into a large pothole. The plaintiff was an ironworker employed by a construction company. A steel plant had designated a parking lot to be used by the construction company employees. Apparently the plaintiff knew that the parking lot contained many potholes because he had noticed them during the several days he had been working on the job.

On the night of November 15, 1960, the plaintiff went down the steps of a shuttle bus and stepped into a hole that was at least three feet wide and six inches deep.

When he stepped into the hole with his left foot, he twisted his knee and heard something pop. He went to the emergency room, where he was x-rayed and given a brace to wear.

On November 16, 1960, the plaintiff underwent surgery. The knee joint was opened up and repairs were made to his ruptured anterior cruciate ligament and the medical collateral ligament. Approximately two months after his injury, James could not straighten or bend his knee. According to the surgeon's trial testimony, a plaintiff sustained permanent damage to his knee.

The issue arose at trial as to whether the owner of the parking lot was responsible for the injury. The steel company argued that the conditions on the parking lot were open and obvious and that the plaintiff failed to prove that Inland Steel had notice of the conditions on the lot.

The Appellate Court noted that Inland Steel had the duty to use ordinary care to maintain its property in a reasonably safe condition. Apparently the potholes had been there for a long time, and the court noted that large numbers of potholes generally do not spring up overnight. Therefore, the court concluded that Inland Steel knew or should have known about the poor conditions in the parking lot. The Appellate Court held that the plaintiff was entitled to recover damages in a case of this nature.

Program offering funds for museums

Grant applications are being accepted for a new, $50 million program to help Illinois public museums expand and upgrade their facilities and exhibits.

Gov. Jim Edgar proposed the five-year Public Museum Capital Grants Program as part of a sweeping initiative to improve museum facilities and develop partnerships between museums and schools in the state.

Museums in Illinois that are operated by or located on land owned by a unit government are eligible to apply for capital grant funding. The application deadline is Nov. 2.

The grant program, administered by the Illinois Department of Natural Resources, reimburses up to one-third the cost of a capital improvement project.

Any museum seeking a grant in fiscal year 1999 must submit a five-year capital plan by the deadline. Museums intending to apply in succeeding years must submit a letter of intent and a five-year capital plan.

Grant applications will be judged on the proposed project's potential to enhance the museum's educational mission and meet community needs.

A grant application packet and additional information on the Museum Capital Grants Program are available from the Illinois State Museum, Springfield, 52706-5000; or by calling (217) 782-7388.

Readhead, who was not wearing a seat belt, suffered a massive head and chest injuries. She was pronounced dead at the scene at about 2:20 a.m.

Bosse, of Luxemburg, Wis., was uninjured.

Bond was set at $25,000. Clark was not in custody as of Tuesday. If convicted, he faces three to seven years in prison.

The $10 increase causes no big commotion for teams, he said, because hockey teams are used to paying high fees for ice time. The Park District still has one of the lowest ice-time fees in the St. Louis area, he said.

Patterson Tires purchased ad space on the new Zamboni to help pay off the loan, he said.

The Legion's campaign to solicit funds for the helmet has the approval of the Fire Department, so despite reports last month that warned of suspicious solicitations and scams, residents can be assured if called by the Legion, the money will go for a good cause, a Legion representative said.

John Green Jr., a business representative for Local 50, said they are striking to get Gateway to rehire the laid off workers and negotiate with them "to give people a living wage."

Wickham said he didn't believe the picketing would affect the CARQUEST Auto Parts 250 race on Oct. 17.

money will be apportioned among the parties. Callis said a hearing will probably be held within 60 days.

The wrongful death suit stemmed from the boy's death in pool water that was so murky that his body was not detected for 30 minutes after he slipped below the surface. A cousin nearly drowned and was taken to a hospital in the same incident.

The hotel and its operators admitted liability before the trial began, which shortened the trial to just two days. The main question for the jury was the amount of damages.

The circumstances of the boy's death were never presented to the jury. Instead, four plaintiff witnesses tearfully talked at length about a little boy that they said was a joy to everyone he met. His mother, father and two aunts were asked to describe the youngster, who was depicted on large family-photo exhibits for the jury.

On the day of his death, Ronald was scheduled to have been in the company of his father, but his father was detained at a church choir event, and Thomas' sister-in-law, Annice Burris, volunteered to take the boy along with her on a birthday swimming outing to the Travelodge. Annice Burris worked as a housekeeper at the hotel and was allowed use of the swimming pool, she testified. Among those attending the birthday party was Annice Burris' daughter, who had just turned 12. Ronald Burris had turned 6 two days before his death.

"(Little Ron) was just like the son I never had," Annice Burris testified. Ronald Burris Sr., who was never married to Shawna Thomas and ended his relationship with her in 1993, stayed close to his son through regular visits. He testified that his son loved parks, running and going to Chuck E. Cheese pizza restaurants.

Church

Zoning law currently prohibits the type of prefabricated metal structure the church seeks on its land.

The church purchased land on East 23rd Street, near Maryville Road and Lake School, and already has invested $100,000 in the project. When first seeking permits from the city, leaders learned a church could be built in any zoning in the city, Linhart said. However, the prefabricated building can not be erected in any zoning except agricultural commercial.

The problem, said Building Inspector Glen Hollis is that it's an industrial building in a residential district. However, the planning commission — which next meets today, Thursday — and then the council could approve a rezoning.

Asked if he would accept the building if the land were rezoned, Hollis said yes. "If it's rezoned agricultural, I don't have any choice (but) to go with what the ordinance says."

Alderman Mac Warfield was the most vocal in support for the church to be built.

"There's (a similar structure) out on Marshall Avenue ... around all kinds of homes in a residential area," he said. "I grew up there, (and) I can't believe that any church has to come here and beg this city to be a church in our area. It's ridiculous."

"I feel sorry that all these people had to come here ... to go through this. On my behalf I want to apologize to you, Ed, for having to do all this because it's wrong, and you know it," he said, sparking the first round of applause for the evening.

Several other aldermen voiced their support for the rezoning, accompanied by more applause from the parishioners.

The Foursquare Church wasn't the only party frustrated by city ordinance. Richard Carter of the 2700 block of Nameoki was back before the council Tuesday to reiterate his desire to erect a prefabricated steel garage on his property.

His property is surrounded by railroad tracks and industry. None of his neighbors objected to his building the garage. City rules state that such a structure could be acceptable if it had horizontal siding — which adds $2,500 to his final cost, Carter said. Lack of horizontal siding is the garage's only non-compliance.

"What I'm asking for is not unusual for the neighborhood," Carter said.

Alderman Foster Frederick summed up many council members' frustrations with sometimes convoluted city laws.

"We've been meeting ourselves to death," he said. "It seems like all we're doing is getting more confusion and more arguments."

"I think we have to do something to stop this nonsense. We've got to argue about a church today, we've got to argue about a garage tomorrow, and the next day we've got to argue about something else. I think it's ridiculous."

Mayor Ron Selph said he agreed with the majority of the aldermen, and all parties would get together to work out a solution for the church, probably at the next planning commission meeting.

Tournament of Champions lives up to its name

Without maybe the appreciation or notoriety that some of the high school holiday basketball tournaments get, the 18th annual Pepsi Granite City Tournament of Champions soccer tournament has become an icon for the sport in area prep circles.

Arguably, outside of the nationally acclaimed basketball Shootout each year in St. Louis, the 16-team soccer tournament very well could be the best display of high school talent the metropolitan area has to offer. Each year, Granite City head soccer coach Gene Baker brings some of the top teams from Missouri across the river to the Steel City. He has attracted teams from other parts of the country, as well as teams from northern Illinois.

Baker has said repeatedly that the Tournament of Champions is tougher than the Illinois state tournament. Despite coaching the Warriors to nine state titles, Baker's Warriors have won their own tournament only twice — 1982 and 1990. He could have taken it one step further, saying that the Tournament of Champions is tougher to win than the Missouri state championship. During the running of the Tournament of Champions, the Missouri state champion won the Granite City tournament only three times. It was Vianney all three times — 1981, 1992 (sharing the title with DeSmet) and 1993.

Vianney, whose coach Mike Villa is now at Triad High School, has been the bellwether of the tournament, winning it five times (1981, 1987 and 1992-93). St. Louis U. High ('86, '89 and '94) has won it three times, as has fellow rival CBC ('88, '89 and '93). DeSmet, three-time state champion since the inception of the Tournament of Champions, has won the Granite City tournament only once (1985). McCluer North ('83), Rosary ('84) and Chaminade ('97) are the other winners at the Tournament of Champions.

The tournament started in 1981 as a four-team event, expanded to eight teams in '82 and has been at 16 teams since '83.

"We wanted to showcase the game and the kids," said Baker, remembering how the event began. "And we wanted to make it more organized than what other tournaments were at the time. There were times when you had no nets at the fields. With playing all the games at one site, it's made it that much better."

"The atmosphere is right for the competition. The competition is always on the line. Teams are playing games to the next level at our tournament. Chaminade, the defending champ, is favored to win it, but most of the time the favorite doesn't win it."

Baker says the tournament will attract between 50 and 75 college coaches each year. Players often will receive scholarships because of their play in the Granite City tournament. Baker cites Florida International and the University of Connecticut schools normally not associated with recruiting in the Midwest — as two schools which have recruited players after seeing them in the Tournament of Champions.

Besides Granite City, three other area teams — Belleville East, Belleville West and O'Fallon — are in this year's field.

"The tournament has offered area teams a chance to play against some top-notch competition," Baker said.

The only other Illinois entry is Springfield Sacred-Heart Griffin, a Class A powerhouse, which is one of the teams being mentioned as a state contender.

The rest of the field is from Missouri, including last year's two state champions — Aquinas-Mercy (1A-3A) and Blue Springs (4A).

Notably absent are Vianney, CBC and St. Louis U. High, which have opted to play in the second annual Rick Hudson Tournament at the Soccer Park in Fenton, Mo.

"It provides good competition," Baker says of the Hudson tournament. "It's healthy for everyone. Many respects, they've emulated what we have done."

Bad weather has played havoc with the Tournament of Champions, as only one of the scheduled 10 games were played through the first two days on Monday and Tuesday.

Action resumed on Wednesday, as each team will have two games in pool-play instead of three as originally scheduled. Pool play continues Thursday and Friday.

The tourney concludes on Saturday, with semifinal games at 9 and 11 a.m. The Steel City Shootout (for third place) at 5:30 p.m. and the championship game at 7 p.m.

Cook wins two more junior titles

Practice pays off for third-grader

By Rick Broome
Staff writer

Marissa Cook, a third-grader at Holy Family Catholic School, won her fourth and fifth junior golf events of the season over the weekend.

Marissa, 8, took first place in both the 7-8 and 9-10 year-old girls divisions of the "Shoot Out Under the Arch," held at River's Edge Golf Course in Granite City.

Marissa shot a 38 in seven holes in the 7-8 division, and a 47 in nine holes playing up in 9-10 girls.

"Around the age of five, I had her swinging a golf club around," said Marissa's dad, Don Cook. "She saw me doing it and she was very interested. She tried it, liked it, and kept going."

This was the first year we entered her in tournaments, because most of them around here are for 9-10 year-olds.

Briggs leads Warriors to regional win

By Rick Broome

The Granite City golf team has been taking steady strides all year, especially home at Arlington Golf Course.

But Tuesday Junior Brett Briggs shot an even-par 72, and was the low-medalist in the Class AA regional tournament. The Warriors shot 303 as a team and won by eight strokes over Alton and Belleville East at The Prairies in Cahokia.

Granite City's Jeff Jorden and Matt Rustio shot matching 76's on the par-72 course, and both qualified for the individual portion of the sectional's next week. Ty Suhre shot a 79, and missed advancement by one stroke.

Dan Harper shot 83 and sophomore Brett Solberger added an 87 to round out the scoring.

But the day belonged to Briggs.

"That was an outstanding performance," Granite City coach Boone Chaney said. "He's very capable of shooting below-par rounds. He just shot a 73 in the O'Fallon tournament."

"He's had a few rounds in the 30s every time, which isn't necessarily reasonable. But that's the way golf is."

"He had one of his best rounds at the right time. In fact, all of them did."

Rain halts tourney

Rain, rain, go away, already! The first two days of the 18th Annual Granite City

Boys SOCCER Tournament of Champions were washed away in torrents, as the ripples from tropical pop Georges continue to be felt.

"With the inclement weather and the conditions on the field, we felt that it wasn't fair to the teams coming in to play," said Granite City athletic director Jerry McKechnan, who had to make the call. "The fields weren't capable of being played on."

The canceled games will not be rescheduled. Weather permitting, the tournament will go forward on schedule, starting with Wednesday night. The results will be tabulated as before to determine bracket-winners — overall record, head-to-head, goal differential, total goals scored, and regular season record.

Each team will still be guaranteed to play two games, minimum.

Tiger boys, girls win county titles

By Steve Porter
Staff writer

The Edwardsville Tigers broke new ground Tuesday. They covered championship territory on both sides of the 20th annual Madison County Cross Country meet.

The Edwardsville girls successfully defended their team title. Thanks to five finishers in the first 10 spots, the Tigers scored 21 points.

Collinsville finished second in the girls event. Kristin Honinger and Nikki Vaughn finished sixth and seventh respectively for the Hawks.

Penny Meyer led the Lady Warriors' charge, finishing ninth overall in 17:38. Granite City did field an entire team for the girls competition.

Meanwhile, the EHS boys, putting four runners in the top five places, scored 20 points and outdistanced Triad and Alton to give the Tigers their first-ever sweep in county competition.

"We wanted to win it together because coach (Jim Price) wanted us to make some school history," said Edwardsville senior Amy Semith, winner of the girls race. She toured the 2.5-mile course in 15:15, or 64 seconds ahead of runner-up Jene Klosserman of Highland. "It's kind of like a stepping stone for us."

Edwardsville's Andy Bratten was best in the boys chase. The junior turned in a winning time of 16:46 for 5K. Teammate Abe Christian was the individual runner-up in 17:07.

"It feels good to win because I knew I had to work hard to finish ahead of Abe," Bratten said. "He led for most of the race, but I was able to pass him with less than a mile to go. I knew I had to do it then because Abe has a strong finishing kick."

already are: Belleville East vs. Chamblade; McCluer North vs. O'Fallon; Belleville West vs. Francis Howell North; Belleville East vs. Francis Howell North; Chamblade vs. Fort Zumwalt South; and DeSmet vs. Hazelwood Central, a rematch of the finals of the Hazelwood Central Tournament.

The only final in so far was the 1-0 victory Aquinas-Mercy scored over Francis Howell North. The game was called early in the second half after lightning struck close to the field.

Maybe the most unfortunate case is that of Springfield Sacred Heart. The Griffins have a 1½-hour drive each way to get here. Their first game, scheduled for Tuesday at 7:45 against St. Charles West, was wiped out. This kicker, however, doesn't make the arduous drive any easier.

"The kids are all fired up about playing," said Sacred Heart athletic director Ken Leonard. "We think we can win the Class A title, and this will be a great challenge for them."

"Granite City has a great program and a great tournament. It's what we have more than 60 years of the long trip."

The Warriors haven't played a game since last Wednesday, and don't want any more time for their momentum to atrophy. In maybe the most protracted of all this week's Granite City/Belleview West rematch — sure to have been ill-tempered — was borne away by the torrent. The Warriors saw their first tournament action Wednesday night against Francis Howell North.

"We're very proud that we have everything on one site," McKeehan said. "Everyone gets to see all the different things we have more than 60 college scouts attend the tournament, and this makes it nice for them. Players get to see guys from other teams, coaches get to see other teams."

The coaches have been outstanding. They've been the most cooperative people. You can't fight Mother Nature."

McKeehan is confident the skies will oblige and the rest of the tournament will go off without a glitch according to his research.

"The weather is going to be good for the rest of the tournament. I checked out the Weather Channel."

Senior softball teams seek players for 1999 season

More than 600 teams (including women) from the United States and Canada competed in 22 Senior Softball World Championships (SSWC) qualifiers to win spots in the world championships, held in August and September at Aurora, Colo., and Chicago. Teams classified as "AA" competed at Aurora and "AAA," "Major" and "Super" teams played at Chicago's Olympic and Elk Grove parks. Teams are grouped in to 50-plus, 55-plus, 60-plus, 65-plus, 70-plus, 75-plus and 80-plus age brackets. The teams that advanced from the qualifiers numbered in the hundreds in the 70-plus bracket alone, 35 teams advanced to the championships. Several local teams qualified to play in Chicago, where six-game schedules were established. The Granite City Rookies (70-plus), comprised of players from St. Louis, the Metro East and western Tennessee, competed at the Major level (the only 70-plus classification) and defeated teams from Florida, Ohio and Oklahoma, finishing with a 3-2 record, which was not enough to reach the finals. "Stan" Sorwatka (East St. Louis), Alex Schutzenhofer (Fairview Heights), "Scotty" Marlen (East Carondelet) and "Pete" Petrovich (Mascoutah) are Rookies teammates. For more information about senior softball, call Schutzenhofer at 398-1527, Howard "Lefty" Harris at 452-5225 or Petrovich at 566-3017.

October 16. Those who place a bid on any item by Oct. 9 will be included in a drawing to receive one of several scorecards from the Sept. 8 Cardinals game. The McGwire record, Roger Maris' home run broke. The scorecards are signed by Shannon and fellow broadcaster Jack Buck.

Shannon is a 1967 graduate of CBC, which serves about 550 students from Catholic parishes in the metropolitan region. Since its founding in 1949, more than 11,000 young men have graduated from the high school.

Far Oaks in Fairview Heights. The Gateway PGA provides events and benefits for the area's young golfers, and work toward getting young players more immersed in the sport on a year-round basis.

"There are a lot of people who don't realize that you can take your kids to these events," Cook said.

With the cost of college education skyrocketing, kids can also provide financial ballast to the player's family.

"There have been over 200 golf scholarships that girls don't fill," Cook said. "There aren't enough girls playing at the junior and high-school level to fill all the positions."

"Right now, I'd like Marissa to work toward getting a scholarship. I know that's far in the future, but it never hurts to start planning early. Our goal for next year is to find another girl around Marissa's age (8-10), to practice and compete with."

Big Mac steps up to bat for broadcaster's cause

St. Louis Cardinals broadcaster Mike Shannon, with a big assist from Mark McGwire, hopes proceeds from a special sports memorabilia auction will help economically disadvantaged youngsters attend Christian Brothers College High School, Shannon's alma mater.

The featured item on the auction block this year at the annual Mike Shannon CBC Golf Tournament and Auction is an autographed Mark McGwire jersey.

Each year, Shannon gathers sports items and vacation packages to donate to CBC.

Many of the items are put up for auction at Shannon's golf tournament.

The McGwire jersey, as well as a signed ball and bat, were donated by the home run champ and scheduled for the regular auction. However, as Big Mac heated up, Shannon opted to open bidding nationally for the jersey, ball and bat by putting it on the Internet.

Those who want the McGwire items, should be prepared to reach deep. The high bid on the jersey as of Oct. 5 was $4,362. The autographed bat has generated a high bid of $2,162 and a baseball was going for $1,062. All of the items are personally autographed by McGwire.

Several other items have received very little interest so far. A signed Uecker autographed baseball has generated one bid of $162, while a ball signed by Major League Baseball Commissioner Bud Selig has yet to generate an offer.

In addition to the sports items, there also are a variety of vacation packages available in the CBC auction.

Those interested in the auction can visit the CBC website by logging on to <http://cbcprimary.net>. The auctions ends championship finale, at Belk Park in Wood River, she placed second.

October 16. The auctions ends at 11 a.m. on Oct. 16.

The differences of playing against older kids may not show up as dramatically in Marissa's age bracket as they would later on. But it still takes a good pop off the tee to put these juniors in position to score well.

Marissa has grasped the concept of lock and load. Call it the "Tiger Woods Effect."

"The driver is her favorite club," Don Cook said. "She even does that with the pro who teaches her. He'll start her with the sand wedge and she'll complain that she wants to use her driver. It's incredible sometimes how far this little girl can hit the ball."

Cook's nationwide popularity hasn't hobbled her southern western Illinois. The opportunities for improvement and instruction are right here.

"We do utilize all the golf courses in Granite City," Arlington, Legacy, Lakeview, Cook said. "We also play at

Company waiving $55 charge for its low-income customers

Ameritech has announced it will waive its $55 connection charge for residential service to low-income customers beginning in October.

The company's request was approved by the Illinois Commerce Commission. "This is the latest move to help assure low-income customers they can continue to get affordable telephone service from Ameritech," said Douglas L. Whitley, president of Ameritech Illinois. "We're pleased to enhance our historic commitment to universal service through this program."

Eligible customers are those who receive aid from Medicaid, food stamps, supplemental security income, federal housing assistance, or low-income home energy assistance. Customers can call toll-free at 1-800-244-4444 to sign up for the program.

Ameritech's low-income customers previously received a $37.50 waiver of the $55 connection charge for residential service through the Illinois Universal Telephone Service Assistance Program. UTSAAP, in existence for seven years, is funded by federal funds and voluntary contributions from Ameritech customers.

Ameritech customers are given the option to contribute to the UTSAAP program by calling a toll-free number that's provided in their December bill inserts. In 1997, more than 6,100 Ameritech Illinois customers received more than $81,000 in assistance.

Earlier this year, Ameritech also began offering its low-income customers a federally funded, monthly local service credit of $5.25 to make basic telephone service more affordable. Approximately 7 percent of Illinois households are without telephone service today.

News in Review

Editor's note: News in Review provides a summary of some of the past week's stories. This column is intended for out-of-town readers who do not receive the Sunday and Wednesday Press-Record-Journals.

Despite opposition, annexation of East Madison is approved

MADISON — It didn't take long for the city of Madison to start working in East Madison. Police patrols in the area started immediately after the city annexed the area — while the Council was still meeting — and street department crews were at work the next day cleaning up brush and weeds.

The annexation took place at a special meeting Sept. 30. The Council voted unanimously to absorb the neighborhood and its approximately 300 residents.

The Council had been expected to vote on the annexation then, but delayed action because legal notice had not been given in time.

East Madison residents filled the council chambers during the meeting, but not as many showed up as the last regular meeting, when the annexation was discussed.

Portions of East Madison within 200 feet of McCambridge Avenue will come into the city zoned B-2 — community business district, while the rest of the area will be zoned for single-family residences.

Hamm told the crowd that any existing residential property in the business district, as well as any businesses operating out of homes in the residential district, would be grandfathered in.

He also said a packet of informational material would be sent to residents in the near future.

Chamber banquet tonight

EDWARDSVILLE — Ed Hightower, educator and NCAA Division I basketball referee, is the featured speaker for the 58th annual membership Meeting of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce tonight, Thursday.

The Chamber will award its prestigious Citizen's Achievement Award and recognize those companies that have been members for 40 years or more. The new officers and new members of the board of directors also will be installed. The banquet begins at 6 p.m. at Sunset Hills Country Club in Edwardsville.

In addition to Hightower's remarks, the Chamber plans to install the new officers: Steve Signall, president; Glenn O'Brien, vice president; Robin Thomas, second vice president; and Jack Grieves, treasurer.

Violence policy under study

GRANITE CITY — With little fanfare, the Granite City School Board approved the 1998-99 budget Tuesday night and renewed contracts with several beneficial programs.

Despite other reports that said the budget has a $1.9 million deficit, Superintendent Steve Balen said that the $1.4 million budget is in good shape.

In other business, Balen announced that board members will review the district's proposed school safety policy this week. The proposed policy will involve new guidelines for teachers and principals to identify and remove potentially dangerous students from school.

The new policy, which the board may adopt this month, was sparked by deadly shooting incidents in other states earlier this year.

The plan also renewed contracts that will continue to provide free dental screenings to district students and approved continuing the intergovernmental agreement with Granite City to continue the DARE program in district schools.

Plan hopes to create more greenspace in region

METRO EAST — Proponents of the Southwestern Illinois Regional Greenways Plan say it will help officials in Madison, Monroe and St. Clair counties deal with maintaining greenspace in the face of rapid development.

The final public hearing on the plan was held in Collinsville Oct. 1.

The plan was developed in cooperation with the Metro-East Greenway Alliance and the Illinois Department of Natural Resources and was prepared by the Southwestern Illinois Metropolitan and Regional Planning Commission.

The goals of the plan include "creating a vision" for a regional greenway network, providing a framework for coordinated greenway and trail preservation, and increasing understanding of the importance and value of greenways and encouraging the stewardship of both natural and cultural resources.

SIMAPAC will continue to receive written comments on the plan for the next 30 days. After that, it will be sent to IDNR and eventually be sent to local governments for adoption.

State board denies closing

SPRINGFIELD — County officials say they may go to court to close the Madison County Nursing Home after a state board denied their request to close it.

The Illinois Health Facilities Planning Board unanimously voted Friday to deny the request presented by Madison County Administrator James Monday at the board's meeting in the Springfield Hilton.

Monday said the Nursing Home is operating at a $10,000-per-month deficit because only 29 residents remain and the county is still paying the provider for its contribution on the Medicaid program.

Officials said there was a $2.4 million surplus in the Nursing Home and Sheltered Care Home budget when the Madison County Board voted 15-12 to close the homes in April.

That vote followed county voters rejecting a $6.5 million bond issue and tax increase to combine the homes in March. But one of the state board's main concerns was the "misleading" wording of the referendums.

He didn't know how much or if the state will fine the county if it still decides to close the home.

Association accepting applications for scholarship program

The Southern Illinois Builders Association is accepting applications for two college scholarship programs for prospective construction and civil engineering students.

One competition is for college freshmen, sophomores and juniors. Applicants must be enrolled in four- or five-year construction and/or civil engineering programs. Winners of the competition, sponsored by the Associated General Contractors of America Education and Research Foundation, may be eligible for grants of up to $5,000 over a four-year period of undergraduate study.

Applications may be obtained at the SIBA offices located at 7623 W. Main St., P.O. Box 24155, Belleville, 62223-9155; or on the AGC web site at www.agc.org (the application may be found under the "Education and Training" banner).

A college senior enrolled in an undergraduate construction or civil engineering program, or a person possessing an undergraduate degree or master's degree in construction or civil engineering, may compete for the Saul Horowitz Jr. Memorial Graduate Award and the Heffner Scholarships. Applicants must be enrolled or plan to enroll in a master's or doctoral-level construction or civil engineering program as a full-time student. The winner will be eligible for $7,500 in assistance for the duration of the study.

The Saul Horowitz Jr. Memorial Graduate Award is fully endowed; the undergraduate program is made available through the contributions from the members of the Consulting Contractors' Council of America, a group of recognized construction industry leaders.

Special awards for undergraduate scholarship programs are offered through individuals' memorials, averaging about 80 scholarships each year.

The deadline for the receipt of completed applications, along with the accompanying three audit recommendations (as outlined in the application), is Nov. 2. Applicants are selected on the basis of academic performance, extracurricular activities, employment experience, financial status and a demonstrated interest in a construction industry career. Finalists are named in January. Final winners are named in March.

Information can be obtained for the 17th James L. Allhands Essay Competition. The winner receives a $1,000 cash prize and a trip to the 1999 AGC Convention in Las Vegas, plus a $500 cash prize and a trip to the student's faculty sponsor. Second place is $500, and third place is $300.

The AGC will honor a full-time teaching faculty member in construction education with two $1,500 scholarships for deserving students, plus a $2,000 cash prize and a trip to Las Vegas for the convention.

Entries for both competitions must be postmarked by Nov. 2.

MDA research develops new gene therapy methods

Results of tests could result in treatment breakthrough

Two MDA-funded research teams have developed mice, each with a different form of limb-girdle muscular dystrophy, and one team has successfully treated one of the muscle disorders by injecting missing genetic information using a modified virus as a transport vehicle, the Muscular Dystrophy Association has announced.

The mice are expected to speed research progress toward therapeutics, including gene therapy, the insertion of new genes to treat human muscle disorders.

Long-time MDA research grantee Kevin Campbell, professor of physiology and biophysics and investigator at the Howard Hughes Medical Institute at the University of Iowa in Iowa City, Iowa, led one team. MDA grantee Elizabeth McNally, assistant professor of medicine at the University of Chicago College of Medicine, led the other.

"In May, Campbell's team of MDA-funded investigators proved the injection of genes can correct limb-girdle muscular dystrophy and restore muscle function in hamsters," said Dr. Leon I. Charash, chairman of MDA's Medical Advisory Committee.

"Now, just a few months later, they've created a mouse model and successfully treated limb-girdle muscular dystrophy a second time."

"The two new models for limb-girdle muscular dystrophy we now have," added Charash, "will speed training of potential therapies so the most promising can be rapidly advanced as candidates for human trials."

Charash notes that mice with Duchenne muscular dystrophy have existed for many years and have been crucial in the pursuit of therapeutics for Duchenne muscular dystrophy, which also afflicts thousands of boys.

Similarly, he reports, the development of mice with a form of amyotrophic lateral sclerosis called MDA, called Mark Gurney at Northwestern University in Evanston a few years ago probably has done more to advance research seeking treatments and cures for ALS than any other single event in the field. Commonly known as Lou Gehrig's disease, ALS affects some 30,000 Americans.

The Campbell team developed mice missing a muscle protein known as alpha-sarcoglycan, one of the proteins that, when absent, leads to limb-girdle muscular dystrophy in humans, the muscles of the shoulder and pelvic girdle weaken first, and weakness and wasting may then progress and spread to other muscle groups. The disease can begin in childhood or adulthood and can shorten lifespan. Seven genes have been found to cause limb-girdle dystrophy when they're abnormal and lead to the loss of a key muscle protein.

Campbell's team corrected the muscle defects in the mice by inserting a gene for alpha-sarcoglycan. They used a gene therapy strategy similar to one planned for use in humans by MDA researchers in the near future. The gene was injected into the animals' leg muscles using a modified virus as a transport device.

The group published its findings in the Journal of Cell Biology. MDA grantee Rachelle Crossin in the department of physiology and biophysics at the University of Iowa was also on the team, as was MDA grantee Joshua Sanes, professor of neurobiology at Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis.

"We're very excited about this new animal model of limb-girdle dystrophy," Campbell said. "We do have a hope with another form of this disorder, but these mice are easier to work with, and their disease appears to very closely resemble the human one. They're a very valuable research tool for studying a cause of limb-girdle dystrophy and for the development of therapeutic strategies."

The McNally team developed mice missing a similar protein known as gamma-sarcoglycan. The absence of this protein, which normally lies near alpha-sarcoglycan in the membrane that surrounds each muscle cell, also leads to limb-girdle muscular dystrophy in mouse and man. McNally graduate student Andrew Hack in her laboratory with much of the work that led to this connection.

"We now have an excellent model in which to test therapies," McNally said, noting that gene therapy is already being tried in these mice.

The group published its findings in the Sept. 7 issue of the Journal of Cell Biology.

The forms of limb-girdle dystrophy that result from sarcoglycan deficiency support the disorders selected for the first clinical trials of gene therapy in muscular dystrophy. MDA-supported researchers plan to begin these trials next year. They're now waiting for approval by the Food and Drug Administration.

SIUE invites area students for Monday campus visit

Preview offers information concerning four-year school

High school students and their parents are invited to a campus-wide open house Preview SIUE, an annual event at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, scheduled for Monday. Community college students are also encouraged to attend.

Prospective college students, in the midst of many decisions about their academic future, will find Preview SIUE to be informative and helpful in making these important decisions. Preview SIUE begins at 9 a.m.

Preview SIUE is the perfect opportunity for students and parents to see what SIUE has to offer as they visit with financial aid advisers, admissions counselors, faculty and students, academic departments and service units. Visitors will also be able to tour the campus and visit the new residence halls. A special session has been scheduled for parents to learn how to prepare for the challenges of sending a child to college.

To register for Preview SIUE, call toll-free from anywhere (800) 447-SIUE (74393) or 850-3750, or visit the Preview SIUE website at www.register.siu.edu.

SIUE researcher invents 'logger'

Rinita A. Dalan, an adjunct professor in the Department of Geography and a researcher in the Office of Contract Archaeology at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, has received a $14,500 grant from the National Center of Preservation Technology and Training to develop a "magnetic susceptibility logger." The logger will provide a relatively non-destructive means of exploring archaeological sites. The instrument will be used as a research tool and as a teaching aid in field training courses offered through SIUE and the National Park Service.

Main Street program expands to include many larger cities

Illinois Gov. Jim Edgar has announced that the Illinois Main Street program has been expanded to include larger cities throughout the state.

Illinois Main Street is a downtown revitalization program serving small towns and cities throughout the state.

"Cities that meet the requirements will now receive added state assistance and recognition as an official Main Street community," Edgar said.

"Central business district revitalization can be a key to the economic vitality of the entire urban area, and it's important that the state work with community leaders fighting for a rebirth of their downtowns."

Larger Main Street communities take part in a quarterly series of workshops on such topics as facade design, downtown housing, arts and entertainment districts, and organization and board development. Other advantages include an annual statewide training conference.

Larger cities also will receive official recognition at state and national levels as a Main Street city using Main Street techniques to revitalize their downtown districts. Illinois

Main Street will continue to offer the on-site technical consultations only in smaller towns under 50,000.

Participation requirements for larger cities are similar to those established for communities with populations under 50,000. Prerequisites include completing an Illinois Main Street application, meeting the 10 Main Street design criteria established by the National Main Street Center, hiring a downtown manager, having broad-based community support, and creating a committee that will apply the Main Street techniques of downtown revitalization.

Illinois Main Street began in 1993 in the Lieutenant Governor's Office with nine small, rural communities. Strong interest from community leaders led to the program expanding to include more communities statewide, and in 1995, the program expanded again to include suburban Chicago. Currently, there are 44 communities from downstate and suburban area participating in the program.

For more information about Illinois Main Street, call Vaeica Cristofulli at (217) 557-1274.

GCHS sophs offered PLAN test

Granite City High School sophomores will have an opportunity on Tuesday and Wednesday to participate in a program offered nationally by the American College Testing Program.

The program, called PLAN, gives sophomores an early start on planning and preparing for their futures. PLAN includes four academic tests, an interest inventory, an educational-occupational plans section and a student needs profile.

PLAN helps to familiarize students with the assessment in content, items format and test procedures. PLAN also provides an estimate of how well students perform on the ACT Assessment by providing an estimated range of ACT composite scores.

Students may register for PLAN through Friday in the high school guidance office. A fee of $9 is payable at the time of registration. The non-test sections of PLAN will be administered during seventh hour on Tuesday, and the academic tests will be administered Wednesday morning.

For more information, call Mike Johnson in the guidance office at 451-5808, extension 50.

SIUC Law School offers help

The Southern Illinois University at Carbondale School of Law has created a site on the World Wide Web to allow Illinois residents to obtain free legal advice on subjects ranging from automobiles to utilities.

The site can be accessed at www.siu.edu/~lawsch/clin/selfhelp.

A $35,000 grant from the Lawyers Trust Fund of Illinois helped underwrite SIUC's program, which includes the Internet site, print materials, research assistance and classes.

The site includes a directory of agencies that can provide further help, with links to many of them. An e-mail address, selfhelp@siu.edu, allows users to contact SIUC's self-help center directly.

Watson commended by AARP

State Sen. Frank Watson, R-Greenview, recently was commended by the American Association of Retired Persons for his commitment to senior issues during the 1998 legislative session.

AARP State Legislative Chairman John A. Herman Sr. thanked Watson "for his commitment to senior issues this session."

The 1.6 million-member organization cited Watson's support of several AARP initiatives as a cause for the commendations.

"One of our most important new laws deals with elder abuse and neglect. There were a record number of abuse cases reported in 1997, an epidemic that is sick and wrong," Watson said. "The law will dedicate more caseworkers toward preventing abuse and impose tougher penalties for people who prey on senior citizens."

Watson pledged to continue his support of legislation that will be beneficial to senior citizens, specifically measures that promote senior citizen independence.

Trout will be ready for taking

Anglers can begin harvesting trout from 35 locations throughout the state at 5 a.m. Oct. 17, when the Illinois Department of Natural Resources' fall catchable trout program gets under way.

"Young and old alike enjoy this very popular program," said IDNR Director Brent Manning. "Anglers are advised to check with individual sites for specific openings, as some sites may not be open to the public at 5 a.m."

No trout may be taken at any of the 35 catchable trout areas from Oct. 1 until the programs legal opening on Oct. 17. During that time, the department will stock more than 71,000 rainbow trout at the stocking sites. Each trout weighs about a half-pound.

More information about the catchable trout program is available from the IDNR Division of Fisheries regional office in Alton; the phone number is 462-1181.

Local anglers wanting more information about site regulations, access areas or boat rentals can contact Highland Old City Lake in Madison County at 931-8901, Frank Holten State Park main lake in St. Clair County at 874-7920 and Jones Park Lake in St. Clair County at 847-7920. All locations will be stocked with catchable-sized trout.

Evil attracts teen in 'Apt Pupil'

Adolescent faces horrors in film version of King story

Director Bryan Singer says he was immediately drawn to "Apt Pupil," a dark tale in which adolescent curiosity comes face to face with evil.

The film, based on a Stephen King story, opens everywhere Oct. 23.

"It was one of those rare stories that dealt in a very intense way with adolescent curiosity," says Singer.

In the film, Todd Bowden not only confronts a harsh reality of life that few average American 16-year-olds must face, but finds himself strangely attracted to it.

"What he discovers," says Singer, "is that this is not school, this is not sports. This is something completely different which has a history and an evil that goes way back before he was born."

"I think the combining of the bright, contemporary youth with one of the greatest evils of history in a contemporary suburban setting is just fascinating," says the director.

When Brad Renfro discovered that a film version was being made of "The Apt Pupil," he knew he wanted a role in the film.

"I've got goose pimples now just talking about it," says the young star who came to the attention of audiences in Joel Schumacher's "The Client."

On the cover

Brad Renfro plays Todd Bowden, one of the top students in his high school class and a typical 16-year-old — until he uncovers a deadly secret — in the film version of "Apt Pupil."

"I was, like, 'I have to do this movie.'"

Singer was impressed by Renfro at the initial reading.

"The thing with Brad is, he's incredibly real. When he came in for the first reading, he was Todd. He had that bright look of fascination — a sponge of curiosity. I knew Ian would bring it the other dimension."

That "other dimension" is evil, made manifest in the form of Kurt Dussander, a former Nazi war criminal living in Todd's hometown.

"I think he's just waiting to die," says Ian McKellen, who plays Dussander. "Of course, he's happy not to have been discovered and punished."

Then he meets someone who takes a genuine interest in him, bringing to the surface powerful, horrible emotions and memories that had long lain dormant.

Noticing a dramatic change in the teen's behavior, school guidance counselor Edward French (David Schwimmer), right, intervenes in an attempt to help Todd Bowden (Brad Renfro) in a scene from "Apt Pupil."

"Todd's friendship awakens in the old man things that would have been better left undisturbed," says McKellen. Dussander's deep, dark secrets about the past awaken feelings in Todd as well, and the teen becomes inextricably bound to the old man.

"It's that seductive nature that keeps Todd there," says Singer. "'Apt Pupil' is a pretty scary film."

Says McKellen: "Dussander encourages what seems to be already in the boy a bit of itching for the nasty side of human nature, and he becomes the apt pupil."

The relationship between Todd and Dussander quickly escalates into something akin to psychological warfare.

"It's like a card game — it's great," says Renfro. "Who's holding the ace? Who's got the jack?"

"They're always rivals and constantly trying to see who has control over the other," says McKellen.

Adds Singer: "It's not a mystery — it's not like 'The Usual Suspects' in that way. But you don't know what's going to happen next."

Both actors express nothing but praise for their director, who is following up the Academy Award-winning "The Usual Suspects" with "Apt Pupil."

Ian McKellen plays Kurt Dussander, a former Nazi war criminal living a quiet life in a typical American town in "Apt Pupil."

"Everywhere you look in this film, the attention to detail is quite remarkable. One's very much in the hands of Bryan, and I'm very happy to be so. I think he's got immaculate taste, and he's very clear about what he wants," says veteran actor McKellen.

Adds Renfro: "We were all excited and into it. I had a great experience working with Bryan. He's a wonderful director."

"I think the combining of the bright, contemporary youth with one of the greatest evils of history in a contemporary suburban setting is just fascinating."

'Soldier's Daughter' isn't what it could have been

But 15-year-old gives remarkable performance

A new film from the respected Merchant-Ivory production team usually is cause for excitement. Like a present wrapped in an exclusive Tiffany box, we unwrap it with great expectations. When the contents don't measure up, the disappointment is doubled.

"A Soldier's Daughter Never Cries" is not a bad film. It's just not up to this team's abilities. Even with the talents of screenwriter Ruth Prawer Jhabvala, director James Ivory and stars Kris Kristofferson and Barbara Hershey, the movie never gets beyond being mildly interesting.

Don't expect "Howards End" or "A Room With a View."

It should be noted that the glue holding this film together is a remarkable performance by 15-year-old Leelee Sobieski as the daughter who tells the story. The young actress, recently seen in "Deep Impact," is on the screen

'Godzilla' producer has many regrets

In the end, time does matter, and Dean Devlin and partner Roland Emmerich didn't have enough of it.

With the Hollywood hype machine running full bore, they finished the editing of their latest movie, "Godzilla," and rushed it off to the lab to make the thousands of prints for the thousands of theaters that would be premiering it over the Memorial Day weekend.

"We were so determined to make this date that we built a schedule where we couldn't screen-test, and we should have," recalled Devlin, the producer and co-writer. "I think we really could have improved the film."

For anyone paying even the least bit of attention to the Great Godzilla Backlash of 1998, this may seem the understatement of the summer movie season. But for Hollywood, not known for its introspection or public self-examination, Devlin's reflections are unusually candid.

"People expected more," he constantly and when she's there, an otherwise turgid film can be a heart tugger.

"A Soldier's Daughter" is billed as a recounting of the relationship between the late author James Jones and his daughter.

Kaylie Jones wrote the autobiographical novel on which the film is based. An American family — mother, father and daughter — moves to Paris where the parents adopt a French boy from an unwed mother.

The father is a best-selling author working on his latest novel. The story is told through the memory of the daughter, Channe, as the two children struggle to adjust to each other, to their bilingual school and to the unusual schoolmates they encounter.

It has the elements of an intriguing saga. But the film's structure is perplexing. Unable to unify all of its characters' stories, the filmmakers choose to break it up into episodes.

For instance, the first episode is entitled "Billy" for the adopted child. Another section is "Channe." The viewer's attention is diverted by the change of focus. One subplot, involving an artistic, mannered young boy who befriends Channe, is temporarily involving but never fully explored.

Kristofferson's role should be pivotal, but in the first half of the film he has little to do and in the second half we never get beyond the surface of the man he is portraying.

The author comes off as a gruff man's man who adores his daughter but does give her the silly admonition, "a soldier's daughter never cries."

Through his daughter's eyes, he is the perfect father, understanding of everything including his daughter's teen-age sexual adventures. Kristofferson seems uncomfortable in the role and Hershey as his wife all but fades into the scenery.

A crisis finally occurs when the father, stricken with heart problems, decides to move his family back to the United States to be near his doctors and to bring the children back to their American roots. The transition is difficult. The children don't fit in at their new high school, and, of course, the father's illness worsens. The denouement is predictable.

"A Soldier's Daughter Never Cries" is released by October Films. It is rated R for frank discussions of sex. Running time is 124 minutes.

Fall Festival is Sunday in Florissant

By Michelle Kowalski
Staff writer

The Friends of Old St. Ferdinand and Old Town Partners are working together to keep the spirit of Florissant and St. Ferdinand's Church alive.

The two organizations will host the Fleurissant Old Town Fall Festival from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

A flag ceremony at Spanish Land Grant Park at the corners of St. Ferdinand and St. Denis streets will kick off the event, which will be spread across a 10-block area running from St. Ferdinand's Church to Florissant Road.

"There are people that don't live in the Old Town area anymore, and they still just love it (the area)," said Gretchen Crank, a member of the board of directors for the Friends of St. Ferdinand. "It (the festival) just brings everyone home."

For the past two years the festival has been known as the Rediscover Old Florissant festival. Crank said the event has been expanded this year.

HOROSCOPE

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 8

The moon shifts from Taurus into Gemini today, changing the overall mood in the air. The focus moves from possessions and money to all sorts of ideas, conversation and the imagination. By nightfall, the Gemini moon makes a pleasant aspect with the sun, Venus and Mercury in Libra, boosting everyone's energy and attitude even a notch or two higher.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). The method overrides speed at work today. Co-workers seek your approval on their decisions. Coddle a disappointed spouse or lover this evening. Financial success means keeping abreast of new developments — read!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Even if you think you're back at square one, don't forget all the new skills you've acquired. Avoid investing too much time in a colleague's venture; you have your own projects.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You receive a bonus. Make the best use of time to yourself. Children or lovers are particularly needy today. Your savings account grows. Grant a relative's request. Luck involves creative collaborations.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Talk with a financial or business contact may not seem (See HOROSCOPE, Page 10D)

Hanks' career not all golden

Trivia

Kevin Carbery

By Kevin Carbery
Staff writer

Tom Hanks comes across as the type of person you would like to have as a friend.

As far as Hollywood celebrities go, it seems as though Hanks would be a better guy to hang around with than, say, Mickey Rourke or Sean Penn. If you tried to take a picture of Hanks, he wouldn't threaten to beat you to death with the camera, like the other two would.

I have been a Tom Hanks fan since he starred in the television sitcom "Bosom Buddies" in the early 1980s. For the most part, he has gone on one terrific project to the next.

progressive, but it's more important to touch base now than to close deals. Expand your artistic knowledge. Tonight, you have a chance to tell a fantastic story.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Love is what you needed to motivate you in other areas, especially career. That outspoken individual refuses to move from a position. Base relationship choices on the potential for mutual cooperation, not ideology.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Oct. 8). Bold moves on the financial front are guided with luck. Problems are solved quickly in your love life this year because you know exactly what you want. Be steady and persistent; more than one quest will be fulfilled by Dec. 1. Focus on educational pursuits after the winter holiday break. Marriage to a Sagittarius or Pisces is most likely.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Those in a position to judge your work are not necessarily qualified to do so. Don't change your path based on anyone else's opinion. Enjoy social glitter tonight. Passion and desire affect a close relationship.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Make sure your work has adequate exposure, or you will not see adequate pay. Resist adding fuel to the fire. Break away from something that's gotten too comfortable. If you must be in someone else's business, be subtle.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). A mishap actually gives you an advantage. Ask for a favor—it's no big deal, really. Schmoozing can be quite profitable. In relationships, watch for the signal that it's time to get on with your life.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You're not reliant upon a habit, so it's difficult to understand someone who is! Pool resources with a business partner, and you're able to take advantage of investment opportunities.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Counteract a tendency to stiffen up in a competitive situation by getting a massage or doing visualizations early in the day. Later, you assume the role of teacher. Life improves when you focus on particulars.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Find an excuse to play around and take things lightly. You can gain emotional strength by helping others have a more proactive point of view. Thrifty friends make it easy for you to save money.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Solo plans are successful and gratifying. A cathartic experience puts your head in the right place.

•Trivia

He was good in "Splash" and excellent in "Big." He won Oscars for starring in "Philadelphia" and "Forrest Gump." He was entertaining in "Volunteers," "A League of Their Own," "Sleepless in Seattle" and "Toy Story."

Still, not everything he has done has been golden.

"Turner and Hooch," "Joe Versus the Volcano" and "Bonfire of the Vanities," which all were released in 1989 and 1990, were three lame films in a row.

Nevertheless, the overall body of work he has produced has been good to great.

He is not merely at the top of the mountain as an actor, but he gives every indication that he is also a decent human being. In a day and age in which famous people often do terrible things, Hanks stands out for not being involved in scandals. I hope that never changes.

For this week's trivia quiz, the topic is Tom Hanks and his screen credits.

1. Who co-starred with Hanks in the television show "Bosom Buddies?"

2. Hanks is married to which actress?

3. Who co-starred with Hanks in the movie version of "Dragnet?"

4. Hanks played a character who loses his mind playing a Dungeons and Dragons type of game in what TV movie?

5. Jackie Gleason made what motion picture with Hanks?

6. In "Saving Private Ryan," Hanks' character was in what occupation before going into the Army?

7. In which of his films does Hanks play a stand-up comedian?

8. What was the name of the movie Hanks directed in 1996?

9. Hanks is the voice of which toy in "Toy Story?"

10. Hanks and what other actor are the only two to win Best Actor Oscars two years in a row?

ANSWERS: 1. Peter Scolari.

At the time the show aired, I thought Scolari was going to be the bigger star.

2. Rita Wilson, who he met while filming "Volunteers."

3. Dan Aykroyd, "Mazes and Monsters," which was first aired in 1982.

5. "Nothing in Common," from 1986. This was a disappointing film.

6. He was a school teacher.

7. "Punchline," from 1988.

8. "that thing you do!"

9. Woody, the cowboy action figure.

10. Spencer Tracy.

Kevin Carbery can be heard as a regular on "The Trivia Coast-To-Coast Show" from 8-11 p.m. Sundays on KMOX Radio (1120 AM).

'Godzilla'

said. "And we didn't deliver."

In a recent interview in the filmmakers' new offices on the Sony Pictures lot, the 36-year-old Devlin said "Godzilla" had problems with the script (co-written by Devlin and Emmerich, who also directed), fallout from the yearlong promotional buildup and even misunderstanding over the meaning of the now-famous "size does matter" ad slogan.

"It's meant to be a joke, and people took it really serious, and they thought we were talking about the size of the movie or the size of the budget or the size of the campaign," he said. "All we were trying to say was the reason why this is not 'Jurassic Park' is that it's a bigger lizard. We were making kind of a dirty joke, but it got totally misinterpreted."

After the movie opened big and then went south in a hurry — inspiring a million one-liners about how "Godzilla" didn't have legs — Devlin was surprised by the reaction.

"I think the only thing that was really disappointing for me was the level of vitriol," said Devlin.

As it turned out, "Godzilla," which cost some $170 million to make and market, reaped nearly $136 million domestically and is headed for more than $200 million overseas. The video release will bring in more.

Still, "Godzilla" wasn't the movie that Hollywood observers thought it should have been. Devlin makes it clear it's also not the movie that he and Emmerich thought it could have been. The pair have built their reputation on special-effects-filled spectacles, and "Godzilla" was going to raise the bar.

Devlin wrote "Universal Soldier," the 1992 action film that Emmerich directed, and they teamed again on "Stargate," the 1994 film starring Kurt Russell and James Spader about a stone gateway to another universe.

Then came "Independence Day," the 1996 alien-invasion blockbuster starring Will Smith that established Devlin and Emmerich as one of Hollywood's hottest writing-producing-directing teams.

"Godzilla" seemed the natural project for them: a big, special-effects-heavy, popcorn-season film based on one of the best-known movie monsters of all time. After rejecting the project several times, the pair finally agreed to put a unique spin on the cheesy Japanese series.

"It's a movie wherein we took a lot of risks, and we knew we were taking them, but we thought it would be cool," Devlin said.

The idea was to fashion a sort of "Frankenstein" with scales, starring a beast who starts out scary but becomes increasingly sympathetic. "It was really a classic monster movie," he said.

The problem was that many moviegoers were looking for another "Independence Day."

"Godzilla has no evil characters. There is no villain. And I think, perhaps, after 'Independence Day' people were expecting a super villain," said Devlin. "I think, for the audience, they were a bit confused. It was, like, 'Well, are we cheering for the death of Godzilla or not cheering?'"

Some of the problems could have been spotted and corrected before the movie was released, but time ran out.

"This is the first film we ever put out that we didn't have time to test screen, and every film we've ever done we improved tremendously over the test screening," he said.

"But with 'Godzilla,' he said, "We literally finished the cut and went to the printer. And we didn't even have a chance to screen it for the studio. It was just like, 'We have to go. We'll never make enough prints to get them into the theater in time if we make any adjustments.'"

Devlin said the Memorial Day deadline was self-enforced, and that the studio even offered to give them more time, but that the partners felt compelled to stick to the strict schedule.

"It was a move done from the heart, to say, 'Thank you' to the studio," he said. "But it also was foolish. It was for all the right reasons (with) the wrong result."
